Purpose of this Supplement

Detailed explanations for all of Go Junior's functions and their use can be found in our on-line documentation. This manual explains how to use the on-line documentation, and provides overview of NEMESIS designed to help you focus on the elements in the on-line documentation most interesting to you. This is not a replacement for that documentation.

Reading On-Line Documentation

NEMESIS Books

NEMESIS stores collections of games and commentary in a file called a book. We provide several books, with contents geared around particular subjects. All books except Defaults.Gam contain copyrighted material and are locked from accidental editing. You cannot play from a locked book. Simply select NEW Book to play. The books provided include:

DrinkMe.Jr — a quick summary of how to use NEMESIS' on-line Go books, an overview of NEMESIS' abilities and samples of using NEMESIS features.

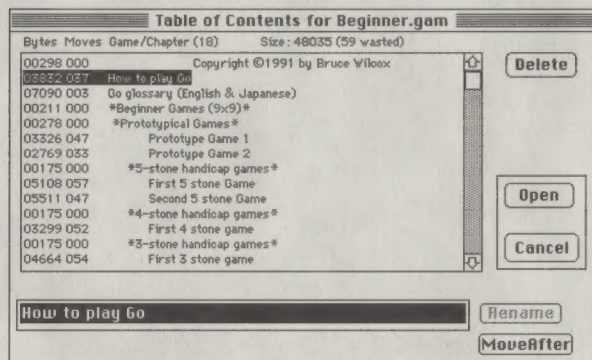

Beginner.Gam — Instructions on how to play go, basic tactics and strategy, and sample games with commentary on mistakes by beginners.

V5.Jr — Detailed description of each menu choice, and highlights the differences between Version 4 and Version 5.

Defaults.Gam — Useful game default settings. Recommended as a start-up document.

Problem.Gam — Sample problem from our forthcoming "Test Your Go Strength"

Books are opened by selecting Open Book from the File Menu and then picking which book you want to open from a list of available books.

Tour

To view a game's documentation, select TOUR from the SCRIBE menu. Each use of TOUR takes you to the next comment, diagram or variation, changing the contents of the board and messages windows appropriately.

Icons Window

The Icons window provides fast access to common commands. Instead of selecting Tour from the Scribe menu, it is faster and easier to click on the TOUR icon.

Buttons

Sometimes the Messages window will indicate that an action other than Tour is appropriate (such as clicking on a board intersection or another icon.) A button on the bottom of the Messages window always directs you to an action other than TOUR. For buttons labelled More, you simply click on the button or press the Enter key to view additional information. For a Select button, some or all of the text lines form a menu you can choose among for follow-up documentation. Select the line you want first and then press the Select button or the Enter key. The example (shown right) is a partial list of Go terms from the Go glossary found in our Beginner.Gam book.

Home

When you are done viewing the contents selected by a Select button, press the HOME icon, to return to your menu. Return from a sub-menu to an earlier menu by pressing HOME repeatedly. Eventually you will return to the start of the game.

Replay Line

Unplay Move — takes back 1 move at a time. This allows you to change your move (most recent or much earlier) or force NEMESIS to play somewhere else.

Replay Move — puts back a move that has been Unplayed, and is useful in reviewing a game.

You can also ask NEMESIS to take you backward or forward to any turn by holding down the command key and clicking on a stone (to go backward) or an empty intersection (to go forward). NEMESIS will switch to the turn in which that intersection was the most recent move.

Unplay Line — (hold down the command key and press UNPLAY icon) goes all the way to the beginning.

Replay Line — (hold down the command key and press REPLAY icon) goes all the way to the end of the game. Replay Line is speed-controlled (see Setup Everything in Game menu), so you can watch professional games unfold at a pace you dictate.

Game Menu

Play — starts or resumes a game. When a game is in progress or some analysis submode is in progress, Play changes to Stop.

Stop — You can use Stop to interrupt NEMESIS while she is thinking or halt the game temporarily (i.e., turn off the clock).

Setup Everything — does just that. Play parameters include Board size, which rules, what handicap, who plays Black, and who plays White. With the Teaching parameters, you can set the replay speed, and control whether NEMESIS tells you why she played a move or substitutes some wise sayings randomly. Board Display parameters includes showing grid labels, choice of shaded or white board (when not in color), how many digits stone numbers take (for making printable diagrams). You can number just the last move, making it easy to find, or number all moves for a complete record of play. Other parameters controls the sound setting.

Pass — is done at the end of the game instead of making a move. When any move would cost you points, you pass. When both players pass the game ends.

Show Menu

The top 4 items of the Show Menu & SHOW in the icon palette provide access to NEMESIS' unique perceptual aids. Perceptions are taught in the Instant Go Starter Kit.

Hints — for 10 hints at once.

Liberties — for the liberty counts of stones.

Score — for the resulting score difference anytime during the game to project a winner.

Groups — for groups & their sector lines.

Normal — to remove all marks from show displays. (The eraser in the SHOW icon).

All of these aids can be used on a particular turn by clicking the appropriate lettered box within the SHOW icon (e.g., H for hints), or you can have NEMESIS continuously update her display to show you their evolution during the play or replay of a game by selecting from the menu bar or command-clicking on the letter icon.

Switch back and forth between views with the click of an icon.

Throughout the game, recognizing your groups is essential. Groups shows the linkages between stones and draws any endangering sector lines. Each stone of the group is shows the group's safety status. This is a number from 0 (dead) thru 10 (alive). Numbers 5 and lower are groups that are severely endangered, dying or dead.

Ask NEMESIS for Hints as to where to play next — 10 at once. See the major foci of attention. In the Messages window NEMESIS says why each move should be played.

Shift Click on your opponents' stone to see his Hints.

In the endgame, deciding what stones are alive or dead, and who encloses what territory is the central focus.

Score (shown right) is specifically designed to help you judge who is winning-- from the beginning all the way through to the end.

Dead stones are shown faded, winning stones are smiling, and territory is marked.

In a brawl, stones are attacking other stones in total chaos.

A beginner needs help minding the liberty counts of stones, and Liberties is just the thing — showing the count of each string on the stones which make it up. (Shown left)

Shift-click on a stone and it will even show you where they are! (Shown right)

Scribe Menu

Note: Items in the Scribe menu are also found on your icon palette.

TOUR — takes you to the next comment, diagram or variation. Tour will pass unannotated turns as needed to get the next annotation. If you don't want Tour to skip uncommented moves, use command-click on the Tour icon to change it to Step Tour. Step Tour takes you to the next comment, diagram, variation or move. Command-click on Step Tour to return to regular Tour.

HOME — jumps you back to documentation branching points (e.g., a menu you just came from, or the turn from which you entered a variant line). Use Home repeatedly to return from nested submenus or command-click on Home to get back to the beginning of the game.
